STATE TO CONDUCT AN EXPERIMENTAL SCHOOL

Men to be Educated in Highway Construction Work

LOCATION IS SECURED

Site in Harrisburg Selected---Plans for Building Drawn Up-to-Date

Harrisburg, January 19—Bids for the equipment of the experimental laboratory of the State Highway department have been received and are now under consideration. The award of the contract will be made in the near future and the experimental work will be undertaken as soon as the necessary apparatus has been installed. The building to be occupied by the laboratory was vacated last week by the Harrisburg Light and Power company and plans are now being prepared by the chief draftsman of the State Highway department for such alterations as will be necessary to put it in shape for use. The building is on Fourth street, between Walnut and state streets, and is directly opposite the capitol library building.

One of the most interesting features of the new laboratory will be a school of instruction for highway superintendents and inspectors which will be conducted by the director of the laboratory. Thus the men in actual charge of the making and maintenance of the highways of the commonwealth will be made acquainted with thecomposition and wearing qualities of the materials which will be used in building the roads under the supervision of the department.

Thomas J. Keane, superintendent of asphaltic construction, will be the director of the experimental laboratory and will conduct the work there not only along the lines of research but also as instructor. The office force in addition to Mr. Keane, will consist of a chemist and a stenographer.

According to the plans being prepared for the alteration of the building, the first floor will have a room which will be devoted to the chemical and physical testing of all asphalts, tars and oils, while there will also be a room equipped with heavier machinery for testing slag, sand, stones, Portland cement, brick and fillers, such as carbonate of lime, marble dust, limestone dust and natural cement. In a third room on this floor a minature asphalt plant will be erected, capable of mixing all grades of pavements and, in so doing, offering an opportunity of subjecting the mixtu res to all laboratory and to approximately all physical tests to which they might be submitted under natural traffic.

This equipment will render the laboratory able to take care of any research work that may be desired in analyzing all methods of construction and experimental ideas relating to the paving industry.

The second floor plant will be fitted up for an office and for the filing of records of experiments. It is expected that the award will be made for the equipment of the laboratory in a short time and that the experimental work will be started within the next two months. The early spring will also see the school of instruction well under way and the results of this up-to-date education in modern methods of analysis of road materials is expected to show in the highways built in the future under the direction of the State Highway Department.

BASEBALL CLUB FOR CHARLEROI

This Borough Named as Location for Minor League Team

ARE SINCERE THIS TIME

If the sentiment is found favorable and arrangements can be made for leasing the baseball park, Charleroi will probably be represented in a minor league circuit this year to be formed in Western Pennsylvania. H. A. Mackinnon of McKeesport, is making inquiries to learn the sentiment in Charleroi.

This morning over the telephone from McKeesport he very briefly outlined plans. He said the idea was to make a compact circuit, all towns to be in Western Pennsylvania and all easily accessible. This would be done in order to keep the expenses down to a minimum. What othert towns would be most considered he did not say. It will take in McKeesport and other larger towns. Mr. Mackinnin is of the opinion that Charleroi would make a good town, even though it would be smaller than most of the other towns in the circuit.

FINES ARE IMPOSED IN GAMBLING CHARGE

Burgess Woodward Hears Local Case--Business and Professional Men Throng Court to Hear Evidence

Attended by business men, professional men and citizens that crowded the burgess court at the police station to the doors, a hearing was given seven men Monday night who had been arrested on a charge of engaging in gambling at the home of Joseph Lichter early Sunday morning. The outcome of the hearing was that with the exception of one, all were found guilty of the charge against them and fined $10 each and costs.

Burgess S. L. Woodward conducted the hearing. Testimony was taken from Chief of Police Albright, Patrolman Gust. Brickner and the men under arrest. All the defendants denied their guilt, and maintained that they were gathered for a little "blow-out" in honor of one who was to leave. They admitted they were playing cards, but said they were not playing for money. The police case was made out in detail, it being alleged that money was found on the table when the arrest was made and it being alleged that one had said that they were gambling, but that one man was not guilty. The testimony of the defendants according to the burgess was conflicting.

There were six of the seven defendants present, the seventh having agreed to stand by the decision rendered in the case of the six. The one discharged was Harry Schwartz. Those who were fined were: Joseph Lichter, J. Zeidman, Abe Livingston, Abie Rubenstein, and Jay Goldstein. Max Kotler was unable to be present at the hearing. He had agreed to appear today and it is stated to stand upon the decision given in the cases of the others.

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR THE BURGESS

Correspondent to Mail Expresses Pleasure at Action of Official

COMPLIMENTS CHIEF

To the Editor of the Charleroi Mail:

Dear Sir—We are always ready to criticize our city and other officials, but we are rarely so ready to praise them. I desire therefore to use a small place in your journal to give expression to my approval of the action of the burgess and the chief of police in trying to rid our town of vice, and in doing so I feel sure I am voicing the opinion of a large number of good citizens. Now that the good work has begun, let it go on and I am sure the punishment so recently meted out will have a salutary effect on other law breakers. The borough officials can count on having the moral and material support of all worthy citizens in their efforts to give us a clean town.

I was particularly glad to find in the recent affair that the real names of the offenders were given correctly on the docket, and that an opportunity was given the public to attend the hearing. When offenders can pass under an alias and the hearing is given in private, a premium is often put on crime and the criminal escapes without his just due. The hearing of last evening will have a good effect on other law breakers, and will be a warning that, we hope, will not go unheeded.

All the good people of our town appreciate the part played by your paper in the recent episode. Publicity given to violations and violators of the law will act as a deterent to others. If all those who have the best interests of our town at heart will appear at police court hearings in such cases as that of last night, I feel sure it will be of great good to our town.

Yours truly,
F. A. Richards.

Evidently A Sailor

Unknown Climbs Car When He Finds Door is Locked on Passenger Train

An unknown man is said to have pulled off an unusual stunt Monday at the local station. The 5 o'clock southbound train was pulling out of the station when a man was seen dashing at top speed down Fifth street to catch it.

He arrived in time to leap on the rear steps of the rear coach. The door of the coach was locked. But he was undaunted. Without losing a second climbed over the top of the car to the manner of a sailor climbing a rope ladder up the mast. Then he climbed oveer the top of the car to the front and completed his ride in a seat.

A SUCCESSFUL LIFE.

If any person doubts the ability of a lowly worker to rise to a position of independence and affluence in this country, they have only to read the sketch of the career of Joseph Underwood Sr., who died at his home at Roscoe Sunday. Starting as a child helper to his mother in the coal mines in England at a time when the laws of that country permitted women to work at this unnatural labor and solely through his own efforts, handicapped by poverty and lack of educational training in his childhood, he attained a marked success in a material way, so far above the ordinary that he was accorded high rank and standing in the business and financial world. In addition to that he found time to be a useful and progressive citizen, to rear a family and to enjoy the respect and esteem of his fellows as well as the blessings and fruits of his efforts. His was a successful life in the fullest extent of the word.

What Mr. Underwood did and accomplished can be duplicated today more readily than it was during his career. Present circumstances are infinitely better for material success now than they were fifty or even twenty-five years ago. The most lowly born child today starts out in life under infinitely more fortuitous circumstances than did Mr. Underwood. He would be obliged to attend school until he arrived at an age where he could begin work without undue injury to his physical constitution. His mother would not be permitted to work in a mine, and humane laws safeguard him in a number of ways where in early days he had to accept undue risks and hazards.

In the matter of advancement there never was a time when there was such a demand for reliable and efficient expert service both in a mechanical and an administrative way. There are waiting positions in the most of the big industrial enterprises for bright, alert young men who are not afraid of work, who are willing to travel the road of success, and who have in them the determination to succeed. So scarce is this type of workers that many of the big concerns have established training schools to fit capable young men who have the stuff in them for the growing number of responsible positions that are developing everywhere. Any young man that has it in him can attain the same measure of success as did Joseph Underwood. There are acres and acres of diamonds yet to be mined right here under our very noses.

WOMEN AROUSED.

In refusing to create a standing committee of the house of representatives in congress last week, the house rules committee brought down on the Democratic party the wrath of the National Woman Suffrage organization, which has been maintaining committees at the national capital for the advancement of the cause of Woman Suffrage. It is announced that the Congressional Union of Woman Suffrage proposes to send trained speakers into every Democratic congressional district to oppose the election of their candidates at the coming fall election. The women propose to train their guns on the Democratic party as the party in power, because it refuses to recognize the cause of equal suffrage in its actions in congress as well as in its declaration of principles.

While the women are not likely to accomplish much in the way of political reprisals by such action, they will materially advance their cause by a campaign of opposition. What the public needs is education and enlightment on the subject, and a systematic campaign throughout the various congressional districts will do a big lot toward breaking down the prejudice that exists against recognizing women as people with rights that in theory are accorded all human beings. The campaign will be a winner even if it loses out in its primary object.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

In Sunday's issue of the Pittsburg Gazette Times, Elbert Hubbard, the East Aurora philosopher and publisher of the Philistine, preaches a sermon on moving pictures, which he says "cheer, but do not inebriate, and cost only a nickel or a dime."

"I know a great doctor," continues the East Aurora philosopher, "who prescribed a picture show every afternoon for a patient whose nerves were getting on the outside of his clothes. The man lived a mile from downtown and was to walk the distance to the show and back.

"The patient rebelled. He scouted the idea. He wanted to take something out of a bottle, or be operated on.

"'Do as I say,' firmly ordered the doctor, 'a picture show every afternoon for a week, and then come back and tell me how you feel.'

"'But I hate moving pictures.'

"'Then grin and bear it!'

"'I'll bear it, but I won't grin!'

"'All right, but go—come back in a week!'

"In a week the man came back. Two grins had begun to grow where there was only a grouch before. He had got the taste."

"If you go to the races," continues Mr. Hubbard, "you may lose some money and get excited. If you go to a real theatre you have to dress for it, order out the auto, have a small feed after the show, and tuck a quarter change in your vest pocket from your last five dollar bill."

Then Mr. Hubbard goes on to say that the "movies" stand for Jeffersonian simplicity and true democracy. There is no fuss or frills. You slide in and out without having to put on your "other clothes," and feel that you got your money's worth. As there are good books and bad books, the preacher declares, so there are good pictures and bad pictures. As we grow better we will have better pictures.

The Luckless Procrastinator.

The procrastinator is always liable to be luckless. To postpone a duty that should be discharged at once is to invite trouble for all concerned. Many a man who is well disposed toward life insurance is still debating the question of a policy when word comes of his death. The would be insurant is in good health today, but tomorrow he may be stricken with a disease that may bar him from the ranks of the insurable. His reason for putting off securing a policy may be that it is inconvenient at present to pay the premium. But he should consider carefully the fact that life insurance will never be cheaper for him than it is today. His yearly premium on a policy taken out now would be appreciably less than would be the premium on a policy of the same amount taken out when he is a year older. Delay, therefore, will add somewhat to the yearly burden he would have to carry. The best thing for any uninsured man to do is to insure at once.—Leslie's Weekly

Wall Papers and Light.

"The good lighting of a room depends not only on the disposition of the lights so as to produce an adequate illumination and on the proper shielding of the lamps so as to avoid needless glare, but on the nature of the wall surface on which the light falls," said Professor Silvanus Thompson of London. "Even when the illumination that is received by the walls is ample the room may be badly lit if the walls absorb too much of that illumination instead of giving it back by diffuse reflection. Few people are aware how much light is thus wasted and thrown away.

"The deep scarlet and crimson wall papers now fashionable for dining rooms waste from 70 to 75 per cent; brown paper wastes about 85 to 88 per cent; even an ordinary yellow or buff wall paper wastes 50 to 60 per cent. On the other hand, white cartridge paper absorbs and wastes only about 20 per cent of the light, while a whitewashed wall absorbs from 30 to 40 per cent."

Thumbs of the Apes.

The gorilla and chimpanzee, which belong to the higher order of apes, have many points of resemblance to man, but there is one thing they cannot do—that is, twiddle their thumbs. In the gorilla the thumb is short and does not reach much beyond the bottom of the first joint of the forefinger. It is very much restricted in its movements, and the animal can neither twiddle his thumbs nor turn them round so that the tips describe a circle. There are the same number of bones in the hand of a gorilla as in the hand of a man, but the thumbs of the monkey have no separate flexor or bending muscle. This is why a monkey always keeps the thumb on the same side as the fingers and never bends it round any object that may be grasped. In the gorilla the web between the fingers extends to the second joint, the fingers taper to the tips, and there is a callosity on the knuckles on which the animal rests when walking on all fours.

History In July.

In at least four countries perhaps the most important event in their histories was recorded in July—namely the establishment of their independence. In our own history we have the memorable Fourth of July, while the patriotic efforts of the liberator Simon Bolivar for the independence of Venezuela were consummated on July 5, Colombia ridding herself of the Spanish yoke on July 20. Then there is France, with her July 14, marking the date when the suffering French people stormed the famed and fearsome Bastille. The Spanish forces at Santiago, Cuba, capitulated on July 16.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. HOMES

Your editorial of recent date. "UNFIT HOUSES," was certainly appropriate and up-to-date. The product of LABOR is the basis of our nations wealth, then who is more entitled to Good Comfortable, Sanitary, and Up-to Date Home, than those who produce that wealth.

When I started in the Real Estate and Insurance business, a little over two years ago, I started with a definite plan in view, and that was the building of home for working people, homes that could be purshased on the easy payment plan, and homes that so far as accommodations and comfort was concerned, would equal the best homes in the land, and I decided that if I only built one at a time it would be built right.

In November 1912, I let a contract for four houses, to consist of Six Rooms, Reception Hall, Bath, Cemented Cellar, Heater, Electric Lights, Hot and Cold water in cellar for laundry purposes, Hot and cold water in kitchen, Bathroom, with Cabinet Mantles, Papered Throughout with first class paper, size of lot 30 x110, fenced with locust post and Pittsburg Steel fence laid walks in front and around houses, in fact I don't know where I could have spent another dollar without throwing it away.

Now when you talk of building a home with the accommodations mentioned, it naturally suggests a $3000.00 to $4000.00 home and to much for the ordinary workman to pay, but I had been busy, all the frills were eliminated and all space utilized, and when I advertised them in the Mail they were all sold on short order, but owing to sickness one was returned to us, and is now for sale at the price of $2500.00. Terms $200.00 or more down balance to suit purchaser. I am about to ask for bids on three more homes similar to the others, and should any one wish to purchase a home on these terms, bring your plans and we will build a home to suit you.

Several good properties for sale, at reasonable prices and lots from $175.00 up.

Prank of a Lightning Flash.

During a thunderstorm in Deal, England, Minnie Rogers, seventeen years old, was walking along one of the small back streets of the town carrying a number of umbrellas, etc., when a vivid flash of lightning, evidently attracted by the steel frame of one of the umbrellas she was holding, ripped open her own umbrella, struck her and threw her violently to the ground. There was only one man in the street at the time, and he assisted her to rise. Strangely enough, when she had done so she found that all her clothes, umbrella and cap were perfectly dry, whereas before she had been drenched, for the rain poured down in torrents. Her description of her feelings was, "I felt just as though my head had been stung by a wasp, there was a singing noise in my ears and I seemed to see a bright light, like the sun, shining through my umbrella." With the exception of her hair being slightly singed, she sustained no injury.—Strand Magazine

The Wit of Shakespeare.

A pleasant anecdote of Shakespeare and Ben Jonson is told in a book entitled "The World's Leading Poets:"

"Shakespeare was godfather to one of Jonson's children, and after the christening, Shakespeare being in a brown study, Jonson came to cheer him up and asked him why he was so melancholy.

"'No faith, Ben, not I. But I have been considering a great while what would be the fittest gift to bestow upon my godchild, and I have resolved at last.'

"'I prythee what?'

"'I' faith, Ben, I'll e'en give him a dozen good larten (an alloyed metal something like brass) spoons, and you shall translate them.'"

While Shakespeare, according to Jonson, had "small Latin and less Greek," Ben Jonson was one of the giants among classical scholars of his day, when no other scholarship was recognized.

May Weddings.

In ancient Rome there was held in May a festival called the Lemuria, or feast of the Lemures, which was a ceremony in honor of the spirits or departed souls. It became with the Romans what we should call "bad form" to have matrimonial feasts at the season of a solemn ritual, being no doubt thought to be an insult to the dead to marry at such a time. From this a number of stories grew of the revenge made by the outraged ghosts upon those who dared to disregard them, and if anything unfortunate happened to a couple who had been married in May it would, of course, have been put down to retribution. So the repugnance to May weddings arose, and its influence has lasted ever since, even to our time.—Exchange.

The Unattainable.

Old Mr. Dinsmore had a great habit of lecturing to young men of his acquaintance. One evening Wilbur Moore, a young man from the city, was calling at the Dinsmore home.

"Have an ideal, young man," said the old gentleman enthusiastically. "Always have an ideal, I say, and hug it to your bosom at all times and places."

"I believe that, too, sir," agreed the young man, "but she won't let me."—New York Times.

Discoverer of Iodine.

To very few people does the name of Bernard Courtois signify anything, yet it is to Bernard Courtois that the world owes the discovery of iodine. A chemist of Dijon, he presented 100 years ago the notice of his discovery to the academy.—London Telegraph.

Rise Above the Average.

The world generally gives its admiration not to the man who does what nobody else ever attempts to do, but to the man who does best what multitudes do well.—Macaulay.

With Interest.

Dolly—Mean thing! You said you wouldn't give away that secret I told you. Daisy—I didn't. I swapped it for another secret and ice cream soda.—Chicago News.

JOHN MARRON, ESQ., MAN OF MANY DEEDS; FRIEND PRAISES HIM

In the death of John Marron, the state and nation loses a brilliant lawyer, the world a noble and heroic man, his wife a kind and loving husband, his children a devoted and affectionate father, the poor a steadfast friend. To read the life of John Marron is to read the struggle of Pittsburg and Allegheny to free itself from the grasp of the briber, the grafter and the promoters of prostitution. Who in this state that has not heard or read of the brilliant achievements of Attorney John Marron at the Allegheny county bar? Pitted against the ablest lawyers of the age at times, he was generally successful in winning his case. His fame as a lawyer spread over and beyond this state, for many cases in other states have had the attention of "Marron" as he was familiarly called. There is nothing which demands or calls for the greater intellectual powers than to be a success at the bar. Yet the lawyer with his ability to sway juries, and who commands the admiration of his hearers is soon forgotten, unless that ability was used to attain some lasting benefit, in a moral or civic way.

John Marron was admitted to the bar 35 years ago, and from that time to his death, was one of the few lawyers who was heroic enough to fight against the greed and curse of Pittsburg, and whose success in cleaning up the brothels and gambling houses, the convicting of bribers and bribe takers will stand as a lasting monument to one of the noblest men Pittsburg has ever seen, in his efforts for civic righteousness. The word charity mentioned in John Marron's presence was enough to start his whole body and soul to action, for he was the very essence of charity for the organization of any charitable society in or around Pittsburg was not complete without John Marron. To mention the societies to which he belonged, and the many he helped to create, would be superfious. Suffice it to say there are very few, if any, charitable societies in Pittsburg or Allegheny that he did not belong to. Reared and educated a Catholic, he was taught that charity was one of the cardinal virtues, and he lived and proved a shining example of that faith. John Marron is dead, but his deeds will live for ages, and his legions of friends will always remember that he was always willing to

Scatter the germs of the beautiful
In the depths of the human soul
They shall bud and blossom and bear the fruit
While the endless ages roll;
Plant with the flowers of charity
The portals of the tomb
And fair and pure about the path
In Paradise shall bloom.

A FRIEND.

Weak Lungs Often Lead to Serious Illness

If you have weak lungs, you are generally subject to colds or throat trouble and easily susceptible to serious Lung Trouble. In many cases pneumonia or bronchial troubles leave the lungs in a much weakened condition. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine for the throat and lungs which has been found to be very beneficial, even when a change of climate and other treatments failed to bring relief. Read this case—

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J. "In the fall of 1911 I contracted a cold which settled on my lungs. At first I began to take spirits, as my friends told me I must go to Williamsburg, Va. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the first week in January, 1912. I began to feel better in a few days, but I continued on for three weeks, when I was entirely restored to health. It is now two years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly."

(Signed) W. M. TAYLOR.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years of use to be most effective both for coughs that lead to Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Whooping Coughs, Spasmodic Colds, and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotic poisons or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of Processes, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.
